What Happens Next?

You may be interested in learning a trade . . . or in going to college. But sooner or later, you—members of the class of '70—will be looking for jobs.

When you do, you'll face a challenge greater than that which has confronted any graduating class before.

Where do you go from here? That depends largely on you—first, on how well you prepare yourself for today's jobs. And then, finally, how you apply your new knowledge and ability.
